TOWSON Maryland

Foreword

Time passes quickly when there is activity, happiness, and pleasant friendships. So it has been with the Class of 1956. Four seemingly short years elapse and the typical college senior begins to reflect on scores of happy, thrilling, funny, embarrassing incidents which have been crowded between a strange, uncertain Freshman Week and an exciting, fun-packed June Week. It is these incidents and special occasions which the Senior Class has attempted to present to the college in this Tower Echoes of 1956.

But we hope, however, that this yearbook will be more than a mere diary of college events. We would rather it be thought of as a symbol of a class whose honest efforts and goals were not only to draw from college resources but also to give in order to contribute in some small way to the State Teachers College at Towson.

We would like to think, too, that the presence of the Class of 1956 at Towson has been an element which has contributed in growth in individuals and in the college community. It is necessary that this attitude—even though, perhaps, a bit egotistical—be true. If it is not, then we feel that our four years stay can not be justified.

As graduates, we gratefully thank the college for the opportunities afforded us. We will not forget Towson; we hope Towson will not forget us.

With these thoughts, the Class of 1956 presents to the State Teachers College at Towson, our yearbook—another chapter in the history of a fine college.

to Mr. PAUL DESAUTELS

DEDICATION

Mr. Desautels graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with a B.S. degree and later returned to receive a M.S. in education. While a student at the university, he was the first president of Alpha Phi Omega, a member of the Men's Educational Association, and belonged to the Kappa Phi Kappa fraternity.

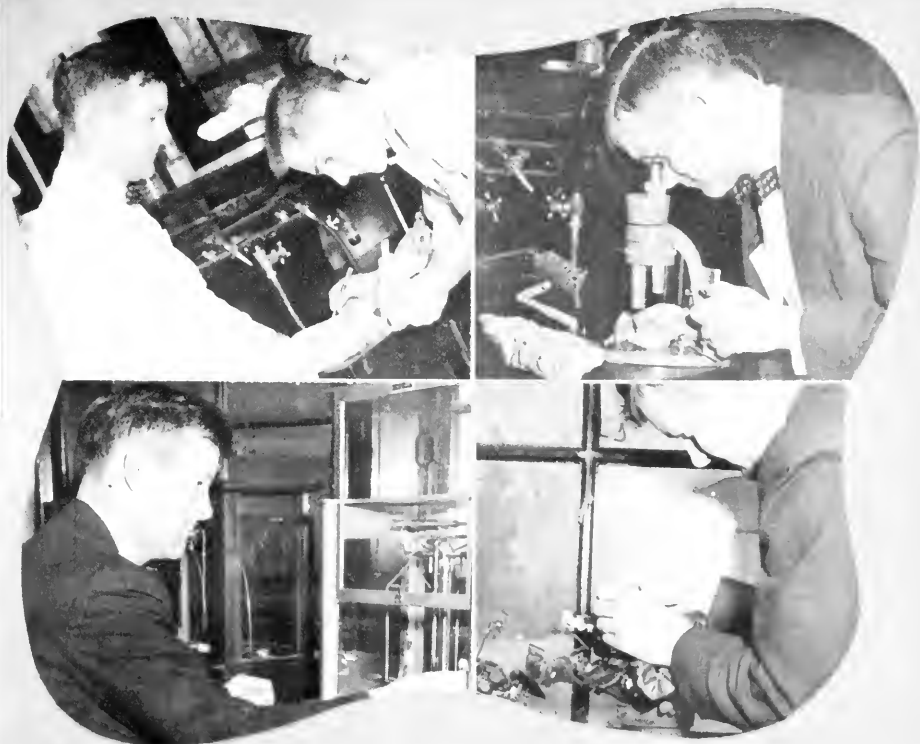

At present, Mr. Desautels is instructor of chemistry at S.T.C. He is on the Administration and Standards Committee, and the Faculty Standing Committee. The Senior Class will long remember him for his serving as class adviser.

Mr. Desautels is collecting a micro-mineral collection for the Smithsonian Institution; his collection, which numbers 2500 specimens, has been declared "the best in the country." He is curator of minerals for the Maryland Academy of Science and is president of the board of directors of the Maryland Mineral Society.

His hobby has long been that of growing and experimenting with African violets; this hobby has proved both enjoyable and profitable.

To you "Mr. D.," we proudly dedicate the Tower Echoes of 1956.

"Mr. D."

Administration

Administration connotes many things to different students in the college. Administration means: course cards, early classes, late classes, new drapes in the student centre, bills, no smoking on the second floor, closed-door conferences, notices in the mailbox, and graduation!

"But the whole is greater than the sum of the parts . . ." Administration also is a definite personality involving each student in an intimate relationship of give-and-take. In this role, administration means: guidance, friendship, widened horizons, and an open door to the future.

Earle T. Hawkins

President

It is the outstanding person who, finding in himself the capacity and ability to lead and help people, enters and successfully ensues a profession dedicated to the furtherance of society's growth. In the president of our college, Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, we see such a person. His success has undoubtedly been the product of his sincere interest, faith and understanding in people, his desire for the realization of a bigger and better college, and his interest in improved and increased opportunities for the members of the college.

Money comes in, schedules go out, systems are revised, curriculums change. And how and where does all this happen? Some may refer to them as the "red tape chambers" (necessary though they may be); to others they assume the formal title of "Administrative Offices". At the core of the college, five small, but busy, offices operate to improve and maintain organization and efficiency. Mr. Karl Moser, heading the Business Office, balances the college budget. Dr. Rebecca Tansil and her staff in the Admissions Office are responsible not only for admitting new students, but also for sending representatives of the college to neighboring areas. Little explanation is necessary to describe the work of Registrar Flossie Jones, whose office perhaps more than any other, is known directly to students. Dean of Students, Orielle Murphy too has an indispensable job of acting in a supervisory capacity for all student activities. Dr. Kenneth E. Browne, Dean of Instruction, is the head figure in curriculum planning and revision.

All necessary, all functioning in their individual duties.—Here is the Administration!

Offices

Work done in a college—goes farther than planning and execution. A good bit of technical work—typing, mimeographing and other secretarial duties is not a small part of an efficiently run college. Throughout the Administration Building many women sit behind desks doing work which enables the plans of the “higher-ups” to be run smoothly. Few know the intricacies of their jobs, but judging from the output of the various offices, these women have proven themselves a competent staff on which the Administration can rely.

Library

No Kimberly diamond, no pearl of the Antilles can match the treasure trove of a simple, quiet library. The walls and buildings housing our rows of books do not shimmer with the iridescent glow of gems, but effervesce, nonetheless, with the thoughts of giant and charlatans among men. Thoughts that are imperfect and incomplete—thoughts that encircle the globe and poke impudently into the secrets of the sprawling universe—cohabit these shelves. Thoughts tawdry and towering are here on equal base for us to judge. These books provide the food that urges “young men in libraries” to think thoughts yet more blundering in their quest for arcana of creation. Purpose, hope, guidance, and truth nestle in the chimera of a library. “Books have led some to learning and others to madness.” PETRARCH

She could give our morale that necessary boost and brighten our day with her friendly smile. Dr. Phelan, too, has helped us all. Classes

Each class is unique in its own way in that it develops a personality and has traits applicable to any individual. Each class is similar in that they have class elections, a class dance, a class assembly, and other activities. These likenesses can be attributed to all classes everywhere but the significant aspect of classes are the individuals which compose them.

In each of the classes, you find personalities of leaders, scholars, and just good workers. It is here that you find the types which lead and guide other students, the ones who are the so-called "big wheels of the college." The leaders compose only a small amount of the whole class; the larger amount consisting of high spirited students who strive to put their class on top, since each class knows that its class is the best.

Freshmen

In September, 400 new faces were added to our midst. These 400 soon became known as the Freshman Class. They started the ball rolling with the election of their leaders. They were willing scapegoats on Spook Day and walked off with the prize Homecoming float. "Neptune's Daughter" came along in March and boasted a fabulous chorus, with fabulous costumes. This was the first chance for us to see the Freshman Class in action and they really outdid themselves. "Jungle Madness," in April, saw thatched huts skirting the gym floor. The dance was a big success.

Good luck to the Class of '59.

The class of '58 came back in full force this year bearing the title of Sophomores. "Snow White" was the theme for their Homecoming float. An open story book with a beautiful Snow White and seven droll dwarfs set the scene. New York and bright lights were featured in their annual assembly, "Lullaby of Broadway." Snappy dance steps and clever harmonizing made the show a big hit. March winds blew in the Roman garb and slender white columns for the spring dance, "Ides of March." Halfway through their college career, the Sophomores are still 'going strong.'

Good luck to the Class of '58.

Frozen Fantasy

the class of 1957

Nearing the end of their college career, the Juniors set out to make this year a big one. Their officers, elected last spring, were ready to 'go places,' feeling the class was behind them all the way. Depicting a scene from the infamous "Blackboard Jungle," their Homecoming float stole the show. According to tradition, the Juniors sponsored the annual Christmas dance. This year, icicles and snowmen set the temperature of the pre-holiday celebration, "Frozen Fantasy." Their class assembly was ushered in by dazzling jewels and costumes of brilliant hues. "Arabian Daze" was a big success and a credit to all who participated.

Good luck to the Class of '57.

Organizations

The organizational hubhub at Towson does more than just keep a lot of people busy. The thirty-two groups on campus yield to the college the leaders, the workers, and the ideas that make the wheels of purposeful activity go round. But of course, basic to any organization is the satisfaction of individual interests. The organizations exist to serve these interests and give to the members a sense of fulfillment and belonging that can rarely be achieved in isolation from others.

Each year, we see new organizations arise—some to stand the test of time, some to be eventually absorbed. This year, we celebrate the formal entry of the 4-H and photography club into the extra-curricular circle. If we could take preview of what Towson would be like twenty-five or fifty years from now organization-wise, the picture might be somewhat different than it is now, but the imprint of each group, past and present, would be indelibly marked on the mosaic of collegiate history.

What makes the student government? Weekly, the executive committee is observed huddled in secretive meetings of great importance. They are planning minor revolutions, sensational improvements, and subtle methods to tear down traditions. They plead with advisors; they are part of the machine. Momentous decisions are made: "Who is to play at the dance?" . . . "What shall we call this campaign?" . . . "How can we get around professors?" . . . The leaders accomplish heroic feats that make school life interesting and acceptable. Supported by the student body, they run extra-curricular events in a smooth, efficient manner. In later years, their accomplishments will still be remembered by grateful classmates. But a new breed of leaders will arise with fabulous new ideas, asking sensational new questions: "Who shall" . . . etc.

Features

As we recall this year's feature events, we experience the full gamut of emotions. From registration, to Christmas, the Sweetheart Dance, May Day—each event has special significance to different individuals. The greatest pleasure in looking back over the year, results when we live through our experiences in retrospect, recapturing the important moments through association.

Although any events are held from year to year there is never an exact duplication of what has gone before. Each year brings the spice of novelty as well as the dignity of tradition. The year 1955-'56 was no exception. Probably one innovation that will be remembered was the magnificent scale of the Sweetheart Dance. However, each event speaks for itself as we peruse the next pages.

Motivation! Integration! Experience! Who says these are worn out educational terms? The Freshman Advisory Council planned and executed an effective and enjoyable Freshman Week for the 448 incoming students who enrolled this year at Towson. Motivation was relatively easy. The FAC found itself the welcoming committee to a very warm and enthusiastic group of freshmen. In fact, so enthusiastic were they, some say that they motivated the upper classmen! Nor was integration a problem, for the freshmen, after a very short while on campus, became an integral and contributing part of college life. During Freshman Week, such activities as the barn dance, pajama party, smoker, swimming party, and many others constituted a packed week to which the freshmen responded with great spontaneity, making the college aware that the Class of 1959 had arrived.

It's not the type of thing which one eagerly awaits every semester; but this year, neither was it quite the necessary evil, that in the past it has been considered. We're talking about REGISTRATION—of course. In September 1,164 students registered at the college. Registrar Flossie Jones seems to have been able to pinpoint and improve upon some of those aspects of registration which were sorely wanting of greater efficiency. Although the initial and necessary procedure of registration is still no joyous task, the method used this year did seem to result in less hair pulling, fewer schedule entanglements, and, in general, a happier and healthier college citizenry.

As a chaotic day exploded into a hectic night with many costumed freshmen "getting their points across" another group was welcomed into the cultural jungle of dormitory life.

When the class of 1956 entered Towson as freshmen, the celebration of homecoming was initiated. From the very first Homecoming, for four years, young ladies from the class of 1956 were selected to be queens. The class is very proud of having held this honor. Our first Homecoming Queen was Miss Pegge Whiteleather Garriques in 1952, in 1953 Miss Nancy Green was selected, in 1954 Miss Pat Wheeler was selected, and in 1955 Miss Margie Cole won the honor.

Rudiments of a first Homecoming celebration were in the air as the Class of 1956 first appeared at Towson in September, 1952. Within several months, the college was ushering in this innovation which since has become a traditional part of Towson. The Class of 1956 feels a special attachment and pride in these first four of Towson's Homecomings since girls from the class have carried with a high head the crown of the Homecoming Queen for four consecutive years. This year, Miss Margie Cole reigned over the most successful of the Homecoming celebrations so far. A parade, originally decorated dorms, a winning soccer game, and a dance describe, in a nutshell, the 1955 activities which alumni and members of the college enjoyed. "Realms of Gold," the symbol used by Keats in reference to great books was the over-all theme. This year the Alumni Association's first place class award went to the Class of 1959's Alice in Wonderland float; "Dinner at Antoinette," the theme of the men's East Dorm took first place honors for the most original and decorative dorm. The dance, Paradise Lost, climaxed what can certainly be chalked up as another success in the Towson's annals.

The 1955 observance of Thanksgiving consisted of the traditional assortment of activities. The assembly, featuring some of the musical groups of the college—Glee Club, Student Christian Association Choir, Orchestra—afforded the student body to render “en masse” Thanksgiving praises. The activity which probably stands out in the minds of students is the Thanksgiving dinner when the resident ladies are served by the gentlemen of the college. As in the past, Towson brought to the campus the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra to provide an excellent and enjoyable selection of “after-dinner music” in the auditorium. Needless to say, a large turn-out was expected and realized. Following the concert a reception was held in the Student Centre for the Orchestra, members of the faculty, and students.

... the Holidays

What greater joy is there than in knowing that because of you, someone's life has been made brighter and richer? With this attitude students at Christmastime busy themselves in preparation as envoys of happiness. The Yuletide activities are many fold, consisting of the assembly, dance, and the much anticipated formal Christmas dinner and carolling. But probably the best loved and most heartwarming Christmas event is the traditional orphans' party, wherein lies the epitome of the Christmas spirit—giving out of love. The Players Present....

between acts

A successful season can be chalked up to the Glen Players. With the new faculty director, William Kramer, the Glen Players opened the year with an exceptionally enjoyable presentation of Good-Bye My Fancy. Starring in the first play was Claire Spurr as Congresswoman Agatha Reed. In supporting roles were Jim Glass, Nan Stroterhoff and Jack Lynch.

Beyond the Horizon by Eugene O'Neill saw Jay Butler, Ginger Beaman, Nan Strerhoff and Jim Glass in the spotlight.

Another Part of the Forest was received by an enthusiastic, appreciative, intrigued audience. The excellent performances of Dennis Fry, Carolyn Lyle, Emmy Lee Butler, Craig Gerhardt and Jim Glass resulted in a successful three night showing.

George Washington Slept Here found new stars on the Glen Players stage: Carolyn Thomas, Earle Myers, Rae Jean Lorenzen.

A good selection of material, student dramatic ability plus excellent directing and technical work, such as properties, scenery, lighting and publicity has helped to establish the reputation and prestige of our campus drama group.

BILL SANTMAN AND MARGIE SADLER

Sweetheart Dance

Ruffled hearts and music by Tex Beneke honors Margie Sadler and Bill Santman as "Sweethearts of '56." The Student Government Association sponsorer of the dance sets a precedent by holding the dance at the 5th Regiment Armory. Frannie Schramm, social chairman of the SGA deserves much credit for a successful dance that will long be remembered at Towson.

If you have ever noticed certain of the resident men with circles under their eyes and a rather seedy out-look on life, it is only because they have probably been enjoying to the fullest the life in the dormitories. It is not that no one goes to sleep before 2 a.m., and that the noise is unbearable, but it is almost true.

Somehow most of the gentlemen in residence seem to endure their dormitory life, and they even seem to rather enjoy it. Having ups and downs in their "home away from home." Water battles, burned furniture, broken windows, etc., are among the daily routine, but with "Mother Wagerman" to take care of them, and a strong constitution, the boys manage.

Dormitories, Dormitories, Dormitories — old ones, new ones, borrowed ones, but certainly not blue ones. The oldest residence halls at Towson are Newell and Richmond, the new one—East Dorm, and the borrowed one—West Dorm.

Living in a dormitory could be labeled anything but dull—especially a women's dorm. Being governed by a representative group of ten girls with the guidance of the Resident directors the residence halls provide ample opportunity for all of their students to satisfy their needs. The social committee sponsors several activities during the year, among which are, the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners, the orphans' party, p.j. parties, a softball tournament, Senior Day, and of course, coffee hours.

"Help me, help!" "Lousy music" "... chocolate, cherry vanilla, chocolate mint chip . . ." "Does she go to school here?" "Who dealt last?" "And when he called me . . ." An innocent eavesdropper whisking briskly through the Student Centre picks up bits similar to these. Groups scattered throughout the Centre give an informal cross-section view of "loungers," study groups, card players, nibblers, and what have you. Categorizing the frequenters of the Student Centre . . . cafeteria rejects . . . parasites with heavy appetites . . . starry eyed lovers . . . clinging vines . . . non-descripts . . . "lounge lizards" . . . academically outlined card flippers. . .

Exam time finds a rather sparsely populated Centre. World Series time finds crowds. heads cocked back viewing a rarely used television. Springtime sees an immigration to the patio. But at all times in the Student Centre there is life, fun, friends. No need to say its popularity ranks first!

Weather — sunny. Students — willing. Ship—ready. Combine all three in appropriate measure and receive a fun-packed day of leisure as the entire college suspended operations to enjoy a cruise down the bay in celebration of the annual college day. On board ship, the college danced to the music of Johnny Moran and his musicians. To enliven the cruise, there was a wild shirt and crazy hat contest. Pegge White-leather Garriques and Dr. Bleislag were winners of the shirt contest. Alice Smith, the twenty-two dozens of roses girl, and George Udel, reknown photographer for the 1956 Tower Echoes, walked off with the prizes for the craziest hats. Upon arrival at Tochester, students raced down the gangplank to enjoy the amusement rides, the swimming facilities, and to lull around in the sun. Back at the college, a picnic supper.

Sports

The college year is not quite in full swing before soccer is ushered in on the campus. The athletes may be seen on the field every day straining and exerting each muscle to get it in shape. In shape for the game on Saturday: the one which few people will attend either because of not knowing about it or just not caring. The crux of the problem seems to be in the fact that school spirit must be established and maintained if college activities are to be attended.

Athletics remained an integral part of college life but only as long as they nurtured and developed so that they contribute something unique to the college. For in sports, we find the embryo of school spirit.

Soccer

Bill Binder slammed home an unassisted shot in the second period to give the Golden Knight soccer team a 1-0 triumph over the University of Virginia in the final game of the 1955 soccer season for the Knights. The victory gave the Knights a 7-1-2 overall figure. The locals had already completed their conference schedule with a 5-0-2 log.

Hey, watch it!

Ouch! That hurts!

The Knights appeared somewhat sluggish at times during the contest and it could not be considered one of their better games, although the Cavaliers must certainly be classed as a major opponent. It was the second successive victory for Towson over the Virginians since the Knights had journeyed to Charlottesville last season and knocked the Cavaliers from the unbeaten ranks with a 3-2 decision.

Reece Livingston, Towson's all-conference goalie, was outstanding from his position in front of the net. Reece had 13 saves in all as he protected the Knights' slim one point margin. This marked one of the few games that Buck Harmon has failed to reach the scoring column.

With their season over, the Knights can now just sit back and watch the results of games involving Baltimore U. and Western Maryland. One of these three will be conference champion, depending on the outcomes of the final games.

During the season, the knights made the headlines. What are some of them? "Towson's Golden knights led by Reece Livingston poured 58 points through the hoop in the second half to smother Gallaudet 101-77. It marked the first time the Knights had gone over the century mark this campaign. It was also the first Mason-Dixon triumph for the locals in 3 outings."

"The Towson basketball team journeyed to Virginia and suffered defeats at the hands of Randolph and Macon and Lynchburg. It marked the eighth and ninth conference setbacks for the locals." These headlines do not give the entire picture. Perhaps perusal of the following scores will tell the story.

Alumni	83-65

Wrestling

Just between friends

Take that . . .

The year 1956 brought an end to a long famine in Towson athletics. We are referring to a shortage of undisputed championships, which was ended when Coach von Schwerdtner's wrestlers finished not only their first undefeated season, but that of the coach as well. Finishing with a 7-0 over all dual meet record, highlighted by a 16-14 team victory over Baltimore U., the Knights amassed 189 points to their opponent's 44.

Among the highlights of the season were freshman star Don Sudbrink's pin of Fred Frommelt, last year's 147-lb. champ, in the dual meet, and crowd-pleasing Dick Clem's win over Bernie Gordon in the Tournament finals, the latter's first defeat in three years of Mason-Dixon competition. Then too, Bill Owings in winning the 137-lb. championship, was undefeated in this class.

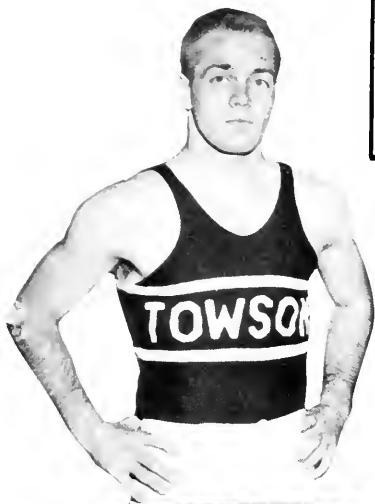

Special mention must be made of the team's three seniors, Don Huges, Denny Psoras, and Walt Weher. With impressive records for four years of action, all have been very important in the commendable showing and continued progress of the team.

Just made it

At the beginning of the season, Coach Earl Killian stated that his chief problems would be pitching and catching, due to the fact that Andy Smutny, would be unable to compete (catching), Bill Maczis was ineligible; Phil Kennedy would not play. With these difficulties prevalent as the beginning of the season, the Knights faced a cold season. The scores listed below indicates their winnings:

Rohr, Anderson, Snyder

The Cross-Country team completed a highly successful season in turning in a fine 4 and 1 dual meet conference record. The harriers, in their initial efforts, trounced Washington College (24-39) for the first time in three years, and continued on the winning road by romping over Mt. St. Marys (20-35). The thinclads then were defeated by Catholic University (39-19). However, Dr. Minnegan's fleet-footed charges returned to the winning path in their last two meets by thwarting the efforts of American University (21-37) and Loyola College (25-30). The squad placed 7th in the Mason-Dixon Championships. The team started the 1955 season with only two returning lettermen, co-captains Bernie Hartman and Steve Rohr. The season's success depended on the newcomers led by Joe Tischler, Bob Spencer, and Gene Cassidy. Their rapid development assured a winning season for the school.

Indoor Track

Towson's indoor track team this year completed a very successful season. The Knights participated in two meets in New York; one in Washington, one in Lexington, Virginia and one in Baltimore. Don Hoffer, Steve Rohr and Joe Tischer won two bronze medals each, and Don McBrien and Bob Rothgaber one each. They were all members of the Sprint Medley Relay team. Hoffer and Rohr both set new school records in the 280 and 440 respectively. Other members of Dr. Minnigan's fine team included Gene Cassidy, Bob Spencer and a tremendously improved Don Wright from which many top performances are expected in the future.

Outdoor Track

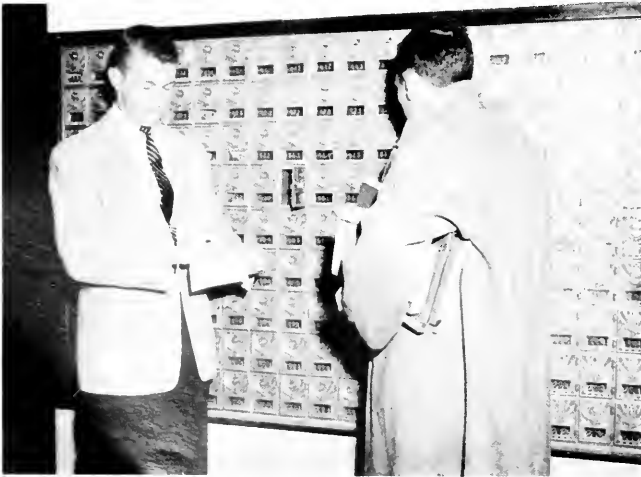

Towson's outdoor track team this year compiled an overall record of 2 wins and 3 losses. The team defeated Mount St. Mary's and Salisbury S.T.C.; lost to Washington College, American U., Randolph Macon College, and Frostburg S.T.C. Injuries and sickness both hindered the cindermen throughout the year. The biggest loss was that of leading scorer Don Hoffer early in the season due to a broken foot. Despite these gloomy aspects, however, school records were broken by Bob Colburn, Don Hoffer, and Jim Davidson. The latter, while only a freshman, broke the school broad-jump record in the annual Mason-Dixon Championships, and placed third in the event to be the only Towsonian to win a medal in this year's tournament. The outlook for next year is good as the knights lose only a few men through graduation.

Seniors

Three years have past: you are at last a senior. You recall your aspirations when you were a freshman and your idolization of upperclassmen and their impression on you. The senior title is now conferred on you. Your senior year differs from the other three mainly in the activities that occur, namely, graduation. Month by month the time slips away and you have suddenly approached June Week. Classes have ended and time is spent in a wild frenzy of trying to enjoy the most of the remaining days, the hours, the minutes, existing in your college career.

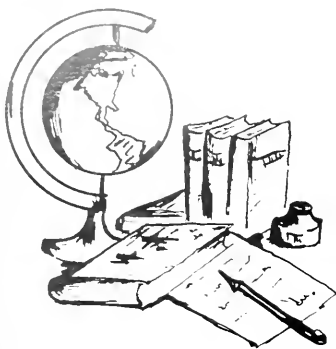

The president's dinner, stiff and formal, passes by; the wonderful beach party, the senior prom, and then graduation, the climax of college life, all arrive and depart as quickly as they come. Your collegiate history has terminated, and you now realize that those four hectic years were the best you have ever experienced.

May Day

May Day 1956 was ushered in by warm winds and a bright sunny day. The Senior Class was proud of the girls that composed the may court and even more proud of Miss Nancy Green, May Queen, and Miss Margie Sadler, Maid of Honor. The Queen sparkled as she presided over the day's activities which included the dancing around the may pole and other musical numbers and dances sponsored by the orchestra, glee club, and physical education department. This year as usual, the various organizations on campus maintained concession booths where such things as cokes, cakes, candies, and snowballs were sold. The day's festivities was climaxed by the annual May Day dance, "The Queen's Cottilion," held at the college.

Senior Day

Anna Zambounis eats breakfast in bed.

What a life! Breakfast is served in bed to the senior ladies; the senior men are served in the North Hall. This was Senior Day, a day set aside to pay tribute to the "procession marchers." The Junior Class members served breakfast to the seniors, while the freshmen served dinner. The night's festivities ended with entertainment in the student centre provided by the Sophomore Class. It was at this time that such prophesies as the following were read: "Skip Wayson—Skip was last seen going on a picnic because someone told him he looked liked William Holden." "Alice Smith—Roses are red, Alice knows well but 22 dozens surely do smell." A trip to Towson ensued the occasion.

90th Anniversary

Governor McKeldin of Maryland speaks at the assembly celebrating the 90th anniversary of the college.

President Bill Santman is invested by President Earle T. Hawkins.

The senior class wore their caps and gowns for the first time as they marched in procession to be invested at the traditional investiture assembly. At this time, recognition was given to students who had contributed much to the college and to the honor students with averages of 3.0 and better.

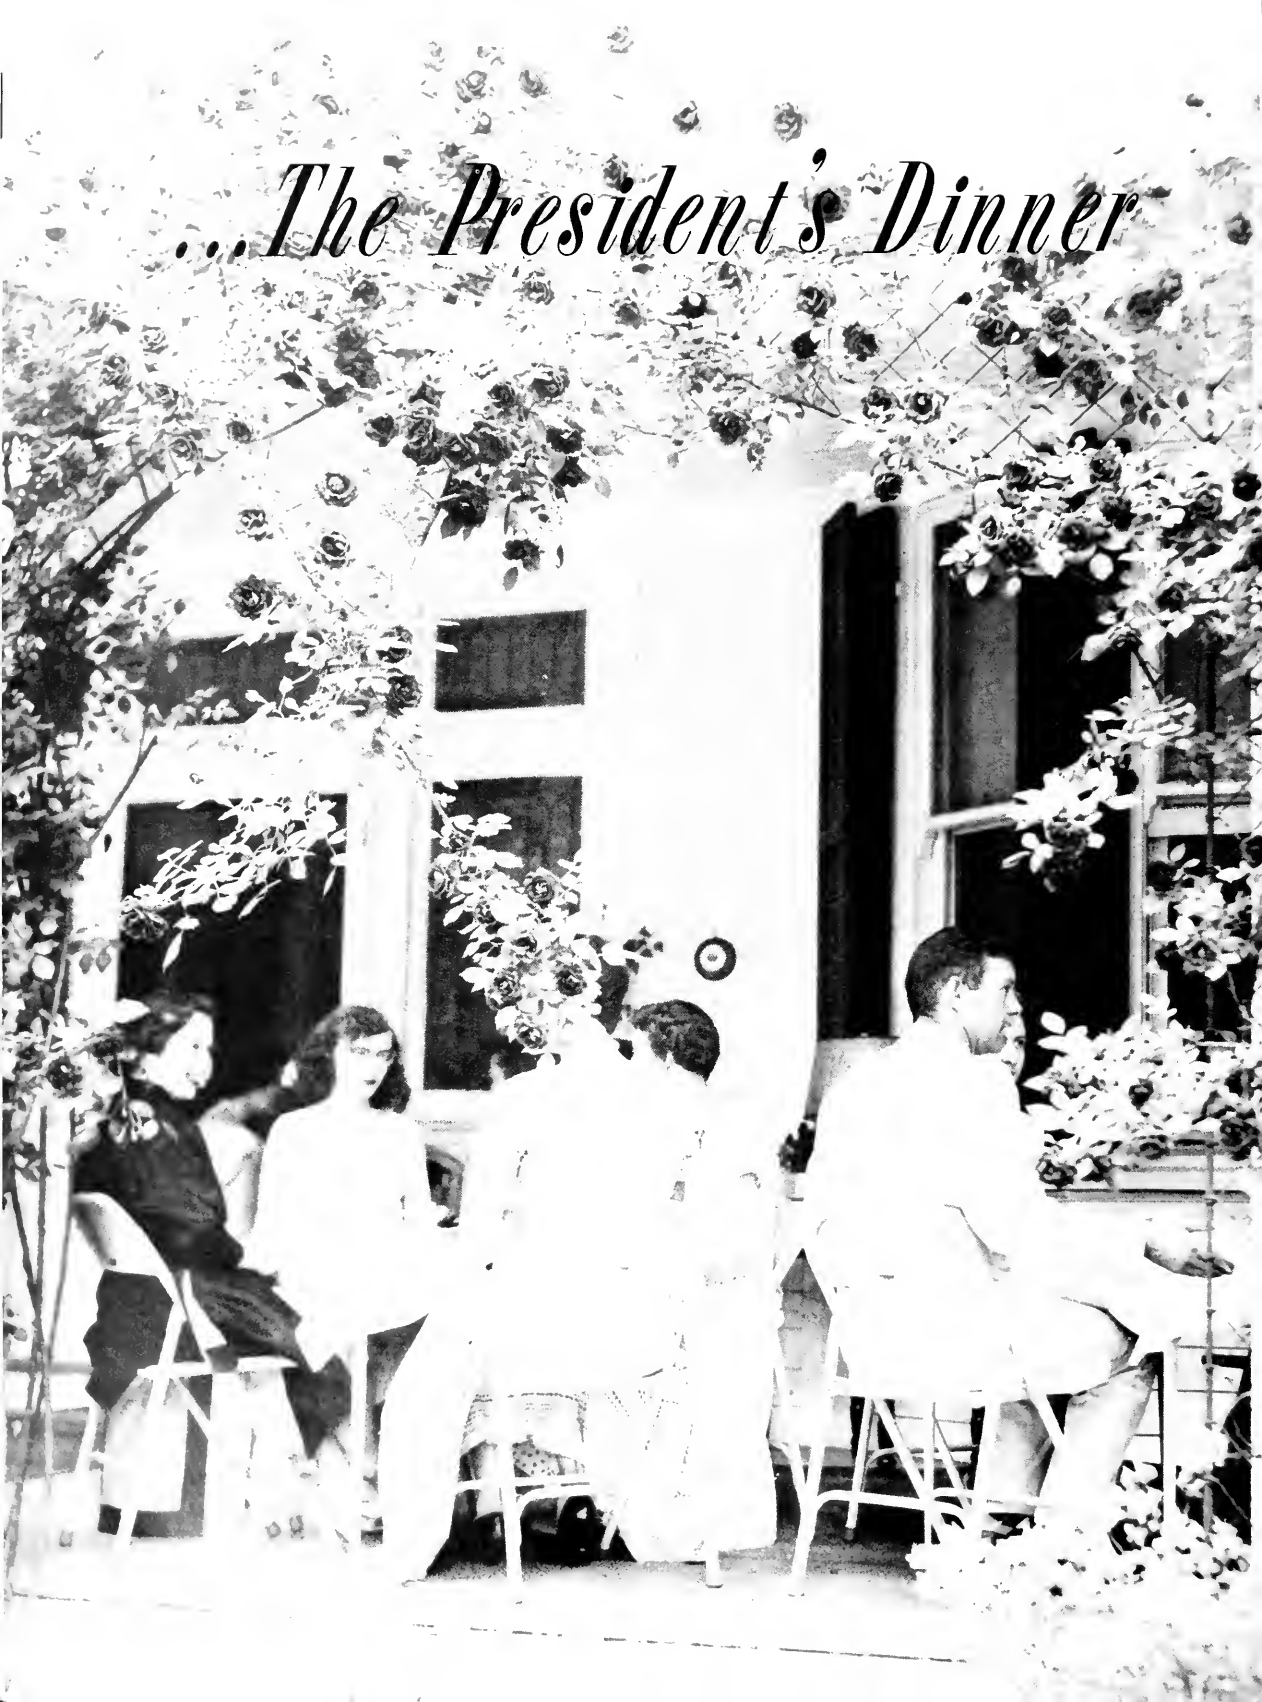

Investiture

Mr. Paul Desautels is recognized for serving as class advisor.

Dr. Willis, chairman of the social science department speaks at the assembly.

Time out to dance

The senior class clad in bermudas, khaki, and other leisure attire, enjoyed a day's outing at Crystal Beach in celebration of their June Week activities. It was a fun-packed day crammed full of all kinds of craziness. The seniors stuffed themselves with steamed crabs, enjoyed the warm water, lulled around on the beach, and just chattered the time away. Everyone returned to campus tired, full of sand, and high in spirit. It was a great day spent with a wonderful crowd.

Seniors enjoying themselves

The most anticipated event of the entire four years, the senior prom, provided everyone with a successful evening. The seniors dressed in formal attire danced to the music of Frank Welsh in the main ballroom of the Southern Hotel. The seniors sparkled with anxiety and happiness but behind those smiles and twinkling eyes, there was a feeling of sadness since this was really their last formal occasion together. The class as a whole will long feel the rhythm of the music and will retain fond memories shared as they danced the night away.

The choir sings at the Baccalaureate service.

Graduation

Governor McKeldin speaks at graduation.

Reverend Wilson listens to the choir.

Waiting for the procession to begin.

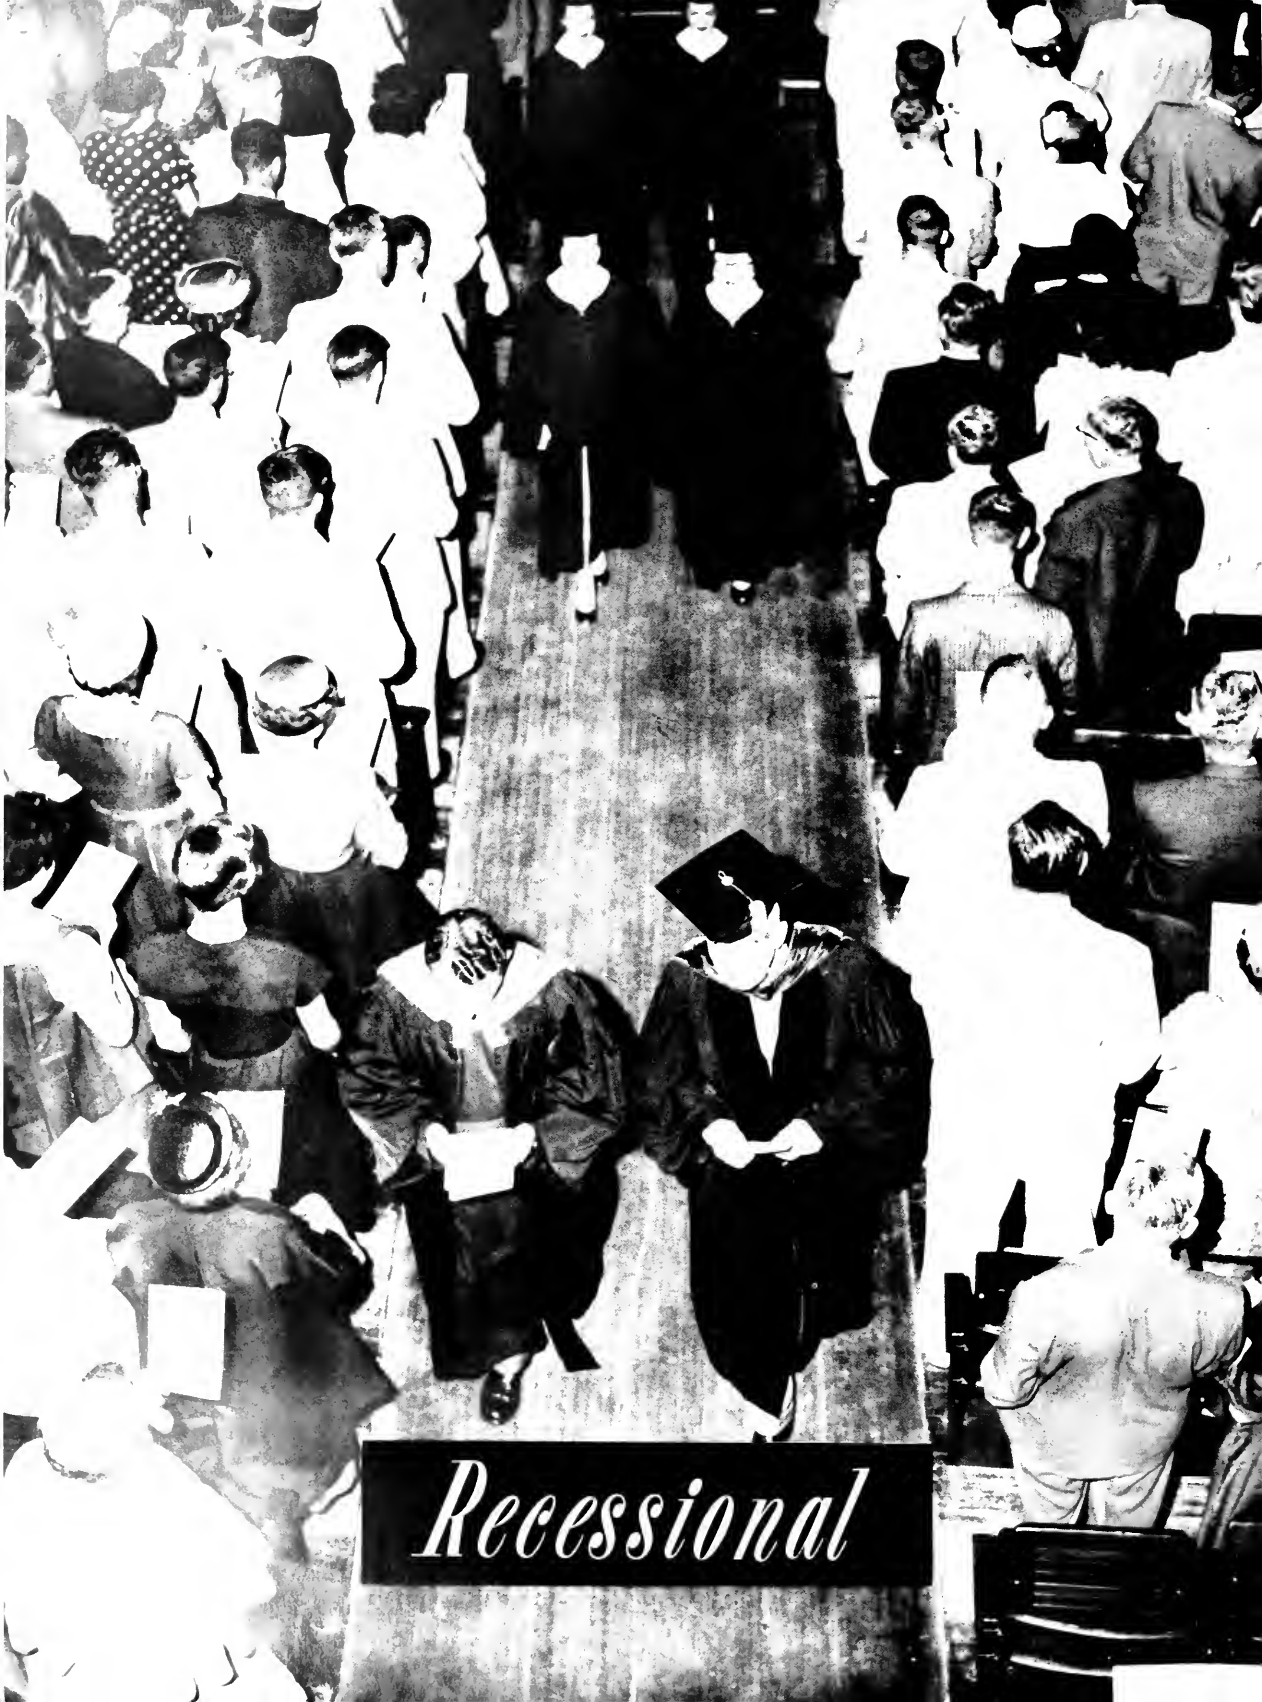

President Elkins delivered the main address.

The sermon for the baccalaureate service was presented by the Reverend Iain Wilson of the Franklin Street Presbyterian Church, Baltimore. At 3:00, the seniors were all in procession. The graduation services which were held inside was attended by a large crowd of parents and guests. The presentation of diplomas was by His Excellency Theodore R. McKeldin, Governor of Maryland. The main address was delivered by President Elkins of the University of Maryland. Thus 169 seniors were graduated from Towson State Teachers College with B.S. degrees.

Chris, being congratulated by Governor McKeldin.

The Tower Echoes of 1956

We of the Tower Echoes of 1956 believe that we have created a yearbook both unique and different from any annual thus published for Towson. It was our desire to capture the atmosphere and spirit of our college in an original manner; we feel as though we have done this and created "many firsts." This yearbook was made possible through the untiring effort and dependability shown by the various editors and to the following people who contributed: Stella Seltza, Steve Rohr, Don Keyser, Anna Zambounis, Babs Bartley, Nancy Peterson, and Josie Nead. To next year's staff headed by Jane Lilley, we wish the best of luck and hope that all of the books in the future will strive for unique and originality that will distinguish each from all others.

"That's funny, let's print it."
